WHAT GOES WITH FILM?

Pairing the Newport Beach Film Festival's Culinary Film Series with the local wine selection

By Morgan Edwards

The Newport Beach Film Festival's Culinary Film Series returns for a second year, celebrating endeavors in the food-and-beverage industry. This intricate subject highlights the many achievements within the culinary community, as well as the struggles and socioeconomic hurdles that lay behind what we consume every day. Of the nine films featured in 2019's lineup, four center on the craft of winemaking and distilling. Each story will leave wine-lovers craving a dining experience, so we put together a guide for enjoying a little vino after your viewing.

TIN CITY

This documentary introduces the rebellious and creative wine makers perfecting their craft in the Paso Robles Wine Country. Through blood, sweat and tears, these entrepreneurs are building edgy and creative wine, beer and spirits brands. (Screens April 26)

For those seeking to learn more about wine, we suggest the Wine Lab. The inviting atmosphere offers a less uptight experience for newer wine-lovers and experts alike. 2937 Bristol St., Ste. AM18, Costa Mesa, (714) 850-1780; winelab.net.

HARVEST SEASON

Following the stories of Mexican-American winemakers and migrant workers, Harvest Season examines some of the hardships that face those working behind the scenes in California's wine industry. Wildfires in Napa and Sonoma counties, a growing labor shortage, shifting immigration policies, and climate change are all discussed in this passionate documentary. (Screens April 26)

Provenance Wine Bar centers on fresh California dining and community. Modern yet traditional, its wine selection reflects the resilience of Napa Valley and those who make great wine possible. 2531 Eastbluff Dr., Newport Beach, (949) 718-0477; www.provenance.com.

UNCRUSHABLE

One of the deadliest wildfires in California's history hit wine country in 2017. Victims who lost homes or businesses, first responders, and chefs and winemakers share their harrowing accounts, as a fallen community begins to rebuild. (Screens April 28)

Rave-Worthy Cravings

A guide to local grub

By Anne Marie Panerongan

As the Newport Beach Film Festival takes over the town, cinephiles will find their way to the Triangle, Big Newport, Lido Theater and Fashion Island for indies, documentaries and everything shorts under the sun. Newport Beach will be ablaze with spotlights and movie stars. And at some point, you're going to get hungry. Then hungry. Here's a guide for moviegoers searching for a meal as worthy as the movie they just forked over for a cool flick.

THE TRIANGLE

Utilizing half a dozen screens, the theater at the end of the 55 freeway is flanked by a handful of casual, sit-down joints. However, drive less than a mile down Newport Boulevard, and you'll discover more options than you thought possible. Take, for instance, Toast Kitchen & Bakery. Offering all three meals, a full bar and killer desserts (and we haven't even mentioned the mochi doughnuts available next door), it's hard to go wrong here. Warm service in a well-lit dining room is ideal for those post-movie discussions. 1767 Newport Blvd., Costa Mesa, (949) 473-5057; www.toastkitchenbakery.com. Swing a left onto 17th Street, and you'll stumble upon a staggering number of places. Among the masses is Playa Mesa, helmed by Rolando Rubalcava. If you search OC Weekly's online archives, you'll see quite a few features on the chef—and for good reason. Talented and knowledgeable, Rubalcava brings an authenticity to the Mexican menu. Of course, you'll also find a few modern twists, such as honey marzal dressing in the house salad and confit oyster mushrooms in the vegetarian tacos. A surreal amount of bar seating means there's a space for everyone. Enjoy the modern setting, suitable for families and friends alike. 428 E. 17th St., Costa Mesa, (949) 287-5232; www.playamesa.com.

LIDO THEATER

A single-screen destination, the Lido Theater is right across the street from Lido Marina Village. Besides the coffee shop, every other eatery sports a patio with views of the water. We recently found ourselves at Zinqué for a casual bite. The mostly French menu is chock-full of quiches, steak frites and tartines. After ordering at the bar and taking a number, we were left to find a table to our liking. We also appreciated the low-key vibe and parking validation. 3446 Via Oporto, Newport Beach, (949) 413-7259; www.zinque.com.

Take a stroll from the theater, and in less than 10 minutes, you have your choice of good eats. Alta Coffee is the obvious choice for a caffeine fix. ABC Butcher & Baker is perfect for picking up a meal to enjoy at home. But we headed upstairs to The Cannery. Seafood of the Pacific for its bustling lounge. Sushi and a locals vibe mean laughter often reaches the downstairs portion. The full-service dining room specializes in all things ocean, making this a solid place for lunch, dinner and Sunday brunch. Hang at the Snug Bar, its secondary watering hole, before or after your meal for a craft cocktail. 3010 Lafayette Rd., Newport Beach, (949) 564-0060; www.cannerynewport.com.

FASHION ISLAND

Both Edwards Big Newport and THE LOT are in the Fashion Island neighborhood. You have your choice of chain establishments, but we craved eats from Sushi Roku. In addition to katana robata skewers and Japanese specialties, the kitchen recently launched an omakase specifically for vegans. A kale salad and tofu tobopaki are savory and worth the coin. Be sure to stretch your legs and explore the expansive mall afterward. 327 Newport Center Dr., Newport Beach, (949) 706-3622; www.innovativedining.com.

For off-site deliciousness, drive to Roger's Gardens on the corner of MacArthur and San Joaquin Hills. Its dedicated restaurant, Farmhouse, is a desert oasis. This is serious farm-to-table cuisine, and there's normally a wait. Spend that time at the bar with a refreshing drink. Chef Rich Mead's fresh approach to dining rivals that of many of the surrounding eateries. Note: During inclement weather (read: rain), Farmhouse may close. 2101 San Joaquin Hills Rd., Corona del Mar, (949) 640-1213; www.farmhouse.org.
